

SOLON XENOPOULOS

Architect, Graduate of the School of Architecture of the National Technical University of Athens (1966)

Post-Graduate Studies at the Bartlett School of Architecture, University College, London, in the field of "The Architecture of Cinematic Space" (1986)

Professor in the Section of Architectural Language, Communication and Design at the School of Architecture of the National Technical University of Athens.

Emeritus Professor of the National Technical University of Athens.

Dean at the School of Architecture, Land and Environmental Sciences, Neapolis University Pafos.

He teaches the course "Conceptual Approaches to Design Problems" Theoretical and Design study of Spatial Questions" in the Post-Graduate Program "Architecture - Spatial Design" in the division "Research in Architecture: Design - Space - Culture", of the National Technical University of Athens.

In these courses, the emphasis is on the concepts of Space in Architecture and Cinema.

Worked as an architect in London (1967-1975)

He has a great number of publications, many among them regarding the relation between architecture and cinema.

In June 2014, his book "Is Space to be blamed for everything? Scattered texts on Architecture" was published. (University of Nicosia Press)